THE INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, SEPTEMBER 2, 1897.

A Time that will Not Come.

"The time has not quite come to incite the populace," says Mr. Debs. And it will not come, though Mr. Debs would like it to. With the return of prosperity and the bright outlook for the future, in which all must share sooner or later, Mr. Debs will not find conditions favorable to his scheme to incite the labor of this country to bring about a state of affairs such as he is conspiring for.

Whatever evils there are in our system of government, will be corrected by peaceful means. The millions who work with their hands for their families and homes, and for whom employment is increasing daily, are not likely to follow into an unknown and untrodden state the leadership of those who can give them no guarantee of anything better. With the settlement of the coal strike, which is now more hopeful than it has been at any time, labor will be generally employed and the miners will have gained a victory which in course of time will be followed by better conditions.

The matter of "government by injunction," which furnishes Mr. Debs with his incendiary cry of "Down with the courts and with Congress," is a question which calls for grave consideration, and which is being considered by the brightest minds in America. Whatever is demanded by the people in the direction of protecting constitutional rights will come peacefully in response to any just demand, and at this time, when the angel of peace and plenty is hovering over the land with his blessings, which everyone is confident will come, any attempt on the part of professional agitators of revolutionary schemes to inflame the public mind will be given little heed.

The matter with Debs is that he is taking advantage of a strike for better wages to incite discontent in the interest of his political scheme to establish a system of government which is visionary and impracticable. In all the history of this country there has never been a brighter outlook after a period of depression than there now is, and demagogues and opportunists, who make use of temporary conditions to inflame the minds of the populace will find their task uphill work. Common sense always has prevailed in this republic and always will.

The Demoralized Bryanites.

The Democratic convention in Pennsylvania, in the face of the fact that the state last year gave 300,000 majority against Bryanism, has made another sweeping Republican victory doubly sure by endorsing the Bryan Chicago platform and literally kicking out of the party the thousands of old time Democrats who cannot find it in their consciences to endorse its un-Democratic principles. This they did by unceremoniously kicking out of the position of national executive committeeman Mr. Harberty, who for years past has been the Democratic leader in Pennsylvania, but who is charged with not having given the corial support expected of him to the Bryan campaign.

Of course this could not be done without a row in the convention, and the row became a riot, of which all Democrats save those who believe in the unlimited free manufacture of forty cent dollars were given to understand that their assistance in a local state campaign is not wanted, and some of them were sent home with broken heads.

Had the Republicans designed a plan for the convention its result could not have been more to their liking. The Bryan Democrats of Pennsylvania have simply done what the Kentucky and Ohio organizations did. They have refused to lay aside the knocked-out free silver heresy for a united fight for the control of the state offices, and have driven the Democrats who believe in traditional Democratic principles farther away, inspiring them to remain steadfast in the course pursued last year, until the heresies of the Populistic wing of the party are killed and beyond resurrection.

The Demagogues Outdone.

The New York World, basing its statement on facts capable of proof and manifest to all who care to investigate, says: "The total resources of the national banks are now $3,563,408,063, and they are rapidly increasing. More than three-fourths of this enormous total is available in the shape of loans to move the crops, sustain industry and quicken commerce. NEVER BEFORE IN THE HISTORY OF THE COUNTRY WAS SO GREAT A SUM AT COMMAND FOR THESE PURPOSES."

This refers only to national banks and leaves out altogether the enormous deposits in savings and private banks. The deposits of individuals in the national banks alone are $1,770,000,000, the greatest amount of individual deposits on record.

cord. The loans and discounts in aid of enterprises are nearly two thousand millions of dollars. These officially correct facts, the World concludes, prove the following things:

1. That the people are growing richer again.
2. That the ample wealth of the country is no longer hoarded, but is in active use vivifying industry and trade.
3. That we have no need of gold imports though gold imports are now inevitable. We have money enough to buy all the American securities that foreigners choose to send us in lieu of gold.
4. That there is no sense in the demagogue's cry of "too little money in the country." There is money enough when confidence in the currency is sufficient to induce the active employment of money. The notion that we must debase our currency in order to have enough to do business with is as completely exploded as its allied notion that the price of wheat depends upon the price of silver.

The demagogues are going to have a hard time hereafter in deceiving a people so enlightened by facts as Americans have been in these recent months.

The American people are indeed learning by experience that the demagogues with new financial schemes and quick nostrums are not safe leaders and will steer clear of them hereafter.

What It Proves.

The esteemed Register, with more venom than truthfulness, says: "The good things are coming in spite of 'Hannalism, Dingleyism and the gold devil; and yet this detestable combination claims all the credit for the work of beneficent Providence.'"

Just now, when a silverite organ is embarrassed on account of its inability to explain away the knock-outs which Providence has given the silverite argument regarding silver and prices, which was the cornerstone of the whole Bryan theory, it takes it out in low abuse of individual Republicans. But all the venomous and mendacious abuse the Republican men and measures does not alter the fact that prosperity is here and that the honest money argument, that only the law of supply and demand regulates prices, is practically demonstrated.

The Register, nor no other Popocratic organ, cannot find one single claim from a reputable Republican or Gold Democratic source that the credit for bountiful crops in America and short crops abroad, which have brought prosperity to the farmers of this country, is due to any other than natural causes.

The Register can find, however, hosts of people in all political parties who are calling attention to the fact that this dispensation of Providence, or of "Mother Nature," as the Register prefers it, has proved the most popular argument of the silver theorists to be a rank fraud, and that the Republican position on the money question was and is correct. It is not only proving it in regard to prices of nature's products, but in regard to the claim that there is plenty of money in the country, which only waits the opportunity to circulate.

A "Hannalism" They Don't Mention.

The Bryan organs that are having so many unjust and foolish things to say regarding "Hannalism," true to their unfair instincts, are saying nothing of the "Hannalism" which, from the beginning of the coal strike, has favored arbitration with the miners, has refused to join in the conference of operators to arrange plans to start the mines by force, and is now leading the movement which is expected to bring about a peaceable settlement of the difficulty, with a liberal concession to the strikers pending the arbitration or final agreement.

This has been the course of Senator Hanna's mining interests throughout, but our Popocratic friends have had little to say about it, for fear it might cause somebody whom they have prejudiced with their malicious assaults on him to think better of Mr. Hanna. When forced to refer to the matter they try to make it appear that Mr. Hanna is moved by his political aspirations, but it will occur to the public that it is a pretty good sort of politics which runs on the side of right and justice to men struggling for living wages, no matter what the motive.

The State Fair.

The indications for a very large attendance at the state fair are so flattering that a notable success for the exhibition is a foregone conclusion, providing, always, that the weather is favorable. The farmers in the territory tributary to Wheeling, in common with their brethren throughout the country, are getting a share of the prosperity which has struck the agricultural regions, and as the farmers are liberal patrons of the state fair even in hard times, it is right to presume that this year they will turn out in greater numbers than for years past, and that their exhibits of the fruits of their industry in the agricultural and live stock departments will be unusually attractive.

Wheeling merchants and manufacturers, and representatives of various enterprises elsewhere are preparing attractive displays, while the amusement features of the fair will be up to a very high standard. To the people of the three states not only the fair association, but the business men and people generally of Wheeling, extend an invitation to come and see what is in store for them. The city is large enough and hospitable enough to entertain all who come, and none will go away dissatisfied.

Of the millions of theatre goers during the seventy years of Mrs. John Drew's career on the American stage many thousands have passed away, but the survivors of the more recent generations, and those of the present who have been charmed and entertained with her art, sincerely regret her death, which occurred Tuesday. Mrs. Drew won her way into the hearts of the lovers of the dramatic art at the very start, and throughout the long years of her life never failed in the approval of the public, either as an actress of high rank or as a woman with rare qualities of mind and heart.

Mr. Debs will not be long in finding that his attempt to stir up an insurrection in this country in behalf of his political scheme, will be most unpopular among the workingmen whom he is trying to work for his personal ends. As a rule they have a large amount of common sense.

Some honest workingmen will doubtless look with some degree of disgust on the spectacle of John R. Sovereign, who is under contract to stump the state of Ohio in the interests and pay of John R. McLean, the corporation monopolist, denouncing capital and the money power. The consistency of Mr. Sovereign is of an astonishing brand. He cannot make two extremes meet.

President Faure, of France, is a singularly fortunate man. In the two recent attempts made on his life by bomb throwers the explosion occurred after he had passed the danger line. Perhaps the third attempt will be more successful. The two failures should not make the President of France over-confident.

A continuation of delightful weather through fair week is something for which Wheeling people are prayerfully wishing.

CURRENT COMMENT.

France is in another fearful paroxysm of joy over being allowed to use the corner of Nicholas's pocket handkerchief; which is all so very dignified and touching.—New York Press.

Unique Personage.

Col. A. L. Conger, of Akron, O., has taken an open stand against the reelection of Senator Hanna. It will be remembered that Col. A. L. Conger attained distinction last year by being the only man in Ohio who openly opposed the nomination of William McKinley for the presidency.—Buffalo Express.

No Advice from That Source.

The poor old free trade Bryan scapgoat, the St. Louis Republic, plies Ohio with "John Sherman's appearance in politics." The Republic should take timely notice that Ohio Republicans do not ask advice from such sources. There has never been, since the organization of the Republican party, a campaign in Ohio in which John Sherman did not take a leading part. He is to-day the peer of any living statesman in this or any other land, and the loyal people of Ohio will listen to his words with deeper attention than to those of any other man.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Doesn't Have To.

Supposing W. J. Bryan did travel on a free pass while he was on the Pacific coast—Friend of Man. No such poisoning mind can suppose such a thing. The wildest-scattering imagination shudders to imagine a gifted young foe of corporations journeying D. H. It is necessary for Mr. Bryan to travel, for he feels the irresistible impulse to spread himself over the country and communicate himself to the world. But there should be no reason to believe that he travels on a free pass. He has beauty, eloquence, dramatic talent, a hundred ways of paying his way if he does not care to help the accused corporations by paying his fare. And above and beyond all these high endowments stands his unsurpassed skill in reading the future. The man who foresees that what would be twenty-five cents a bushel if McKinley was elected, has no need of free passes. He can make money selling futures.—New York Sun (Dem.)

"Yankee Ingenuity."

A story of remarkable patriotic ingenuity comes from Buffalo. Some members of the Grand Army crossed over to Toronto, and were forced by the authorities to lower the stars and stripes. In accordance with the law, which demands that the Union Jack shall be displayed along with the flag of any other country. They got a Union Jack and proceeded, with Old Glory waving triumphantly, but the Union Jack was hardly larger than a postage stamp. Perhaps this joke on John Bull will be able to penetrate his pachydermous skin, and he will laugh over it in a week or two. There is nothing like "Yankee ingenuity" for turning the laugh on the other fellow.—Baltimore American.

Changed His Tune.

Down in Tennessee a Pop statesman who boasts of the part he took in making the Chicago platform and nominating Bryan, was within the last few weeks hilarious because he had sold his wheat to a gold bug at eighty-five cents, a little over the market price. He went up and down the land telling how he had done up the gold bug, because, as he explained, wheat was dead sure to fall along with silver. A few days later, when silver had sunk still further and wheat had risen to a dollar he hurried to his lawyer seeking in vain some way to squirm out of his contract. Mr. Bryan ought to make good, out of the proceeds of his book, the losses of such victims of his silver-wheat dogma.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Just as Easy.

The ratio of silver to gold is now 40 to 1, and still some people believe that it can be restored to 16 to 1 by mere legislative enactment. If they are honest in what they say, why not agitate for a ratio of 1 to 1, while they are about it? That would be as easy as establishing it at 16 to 1, in which there is neither significance nor virtue, and placing the metals on an actual equality would bring about perfect bimetalism so far as legislation can do it.—Ohio State Journal.

The Bachelor Again.

A baby is a little pink bunch of yell. The more I think about getting married the oftener I make up my mind not to.

If some people were the devil on a visit to heaven they would get awfully homesick.

A woman loves her husband for her children; a man loves his children for his wife.

Every man reflects a lot about women, but the married men's reflections are generally not fit to print.

Just because a man won't cheat a street car company out of a nickel is no sign that he won't lie about the amount of money his vacation has cost him.—New York Press.

The Hills of God.

We journey through the lowland shadows,
Through the dull, dull mist and the rain;
Oh, chilling the fogs of the marshes
And the winds from the lonely plain!
For the beautiful paths untrodden long
For the beautiful paths untrodden long
For we know that away above us
Stretch the glad green hills of God.

Our feet are chained to the valley,
We plow and we sow and we reap;
There are strifes and toils for the noon-day,
And a grave at night where we sleep.

But something speaks within:
"Look away from the squalid and the elod,
O soul, look up for thy birthright,
And away to the hills of God!"

"In the winds that sweep their summits
Is healing for all thy ills;
Up, up! till thou feel the current!
There is help, there is help in the hills.
Let darkness and sorrow disappear,
But under thee from the sod,
And know thou shalt thrive in the sunlight
That crowneth the hills of God."

TITLED BANK SWINDLER

Under Arrest in San Francisco in the Person of Sir Harry Westwood.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sep. 1.—In the person of Sir Harry Westwood Cooper, M. D., now confined in the city prison, chief of police Lees believes that he has behind the bars one of the most notorious bank swindlers who ever operated in this or any other country, despite the fact that he is under thirty years of age. He was arrested at Langham hotel, and a dispatch of inquiry as to Cooper was sent to the bankers' protective association and there came back the reply that he was a noted swindler and was wanted by the association for fraudulent work done in the east.

Soon after Cooper's arrest his room at the Langham was searched by the detectives and in his trunk were found a lot of certified checks and drafts which the police believe to be bogus. Cooper claimed that he was a nephew to late Sir Astley Cooper, surgeon to Queen Victoria, who, he said, had died six months before, and that he had come into Sir Astley's title and succeeded to his vast estate in Australia with a present value of $600,000.

Having created the desired impression by his talk of titles, estates and possessions, the police say Cooper began his fraudulent work, and they claim that before he was caught he had succeeded in victimizing a number of people.

It was but one or two days ago that Cooper, for the purpose, as is claimed, of assuring John P. Gallagher, the proprietor of the Langham of his unstinted financial resources, gave into Gallagher's hands a draft on a Chicago bank for $100,000. This draft is now in the possession of the police and they confidently assert that they will prove it to be worthless.

Big Price on a Murderer's Head.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sep. 1.—David Weeks, one of the two men wanted for the murder of George Marcus Nicholas, which occurred on the Daniels farm at Trumbull, Fairfield county, Conn., on July 29 last, was arrested here last night. He gave his name as James Dougherty, and states that he worked for Whittaker and Irvin, of Curwensville, Pa., six miles from Clearfield. He says he went to work June 13 and worked for them two months. A reward of four thousand five hundred dollars was offered for the arrest of the murderer; one thousand dollars by the state of Connecticut, one thousand by the town in which the murder was committed, and two thousand five hundred by relatives.

Little Girl—Mrs. Brown, ma wants to know if she could borrow a dozen of eggs. She wants to put 'em under a hen.

Neighbor—So you've got a hen setting, have you? I didn't know you kept hens. Little Girl—No, ma'am, we don't, but Mrs. Smith's going to lend us a hen that's got to set, an' ma thought if you'd lend us some eggs we'd find a nest ourselves.—Household Words.

He—Miss Quickstep, they say you tabulate your admirers as "preferred," "eligible," "tolerable," "not to be thought of" and the like. Where do I come in?

She—I'm afraid, Mr. Quickstep, you are a little too late to classify.—Chicago Tribune.

"What sort of impression did Clara's young man make on you?"

"When I first met him?"

"Yes."

"Well, he was scorching with his head down, and the impression he made upon me was a bruise I didn't get over for a week."—Chicago Tribune.

"I see eggs are $17 a dozen in the Klondike. That looks encouraging for our profession," said the comedian.

"Well, there are worse things to be met within our profession than eggs," said the tragedian: "there are frosts, my boy, frosts!"—Yonkers Statesman.

"Suppose," suggested the teacher, "that you take a piece of beefsteak and cut it into halves, then cut the halves into quarters, the quarters into eighths and the eighths into sixteenths, into what would the sixteenths be cut?"

"Hash," responded Tommy, whose mother kept a boarding house.

And the class in fractions was dismissed.—Tit-Bits.

Teacher—What is a pedestrian?

Johnny Quanch—A feller that gets run over by a bicycle, ma'am.—Judge.

He—I dislike to see a woman standing up in a street car.

She—Yes; I've noticed you manage to get a newspaper in front of you at such times.—Yonkers Statesman.

OWING to overcrowding and bad ventilation, the air of the schoolroom is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C.
